

Computer Literacy Program 2020 Annual Report

With a cautiously optimistic look towards the upcoming year, we report to you the activities of the Computer Literacy Program (CLP) during the highly unusual and fateful days of 2020. While the sixteenth year of CLP operation had started on an enthusiastic note, the pandemic debilitated the normal life and activities of people around the world and Bangladesh was no exception. After the initial turmoil, CLP and Dnet, the implementation partner in Bangladesh, worked towards continuing the digital education initiatives that had been developed over the years. What follows is a brief account of the key CLP activities and initiatives during the early months of 2020 and then through the Covid-19.

- ❖ Ten new Computer Learning Centers (CLCs), three (3) of those, each with 8 or more computers, were established bringing the total to 278. These CLCs trained over 1040 students during January and February of 2020.
- ❖ With the establishment of 6 more Smart Class Rooms (SCRs) the total now stands at 173. Three of these SCRS are also equipped with remote conferencing capabilities enabling remote teaching and implementing Connect Students Around (CSAW) program.
- ❖ Major hardware replacement and upgrades were carried out in 18 centers, and Dnet personnel visited 18 centers between January and March.
- ❖ Dnet got involved in Bangladesh Government's initiative to design new education approaches for addressing the Covid-19 challenges. Online teacher training courses were developed and 33 teachers were trained on adapting technology with pedagogy. Teachers were trained how to use different tools for facilitating online sessions. Mostly they learned how to use Zoom for live sessions and social media for uploading video contents and to interact with students. Teachers also became capable to use slides, videos, images and online board.
- ❖ Dnet also developed online training curriculum for CLC teachers. In the future all new CLC teachers and refresher trainings will be provided online.

- ❖ A heart-warming result of the CLP volunteer program is that many Bangladeshi Americans, even our American-born, youth volunteers are involved and actively engaged in various CLP programs to help those in need. CLP proudly handed over its first United States "President Volunteer Service Award" Gold Medal to youth volunteer Kean Saadi for his dedicated service to the CLP cause. Congratulations to Kean and CLP.
- ❖ CLP website has been revamped with the help of youth volunteers. Please visit the website at www.clpweb.org to find out more about CLP activities and provide your comments and suggestions to further improve the website.
- ❖ After delaying and then postponing the Annual Event originally scheduled for July 25 for Covid-19 complications, CLP's 2020 Annual event was held on October 3 virtually with global participations. We had an exciting, informative and entertaining program. In case you were unable to attend, please follow the links to 2020 CLP magazine and a report published in Weekly Prothom Alo (New York City) to enjoy a "touch and feel" of the event.
